What's a leak?

There are a number of criminal laws that apply to leakers, but these three concern much of the information that might be leaked.

It's illegal to disclose classified information under the Espionage Act or to any unauthorized person.

It's illegal to disclose national defense information under the National Security Act.

It's illegal to disclose classified scientific or technical information under the Federal Advisory Committee Act.

Is it illegal?

Some leaks are considered whistleblowing.

The President, Congress, and the government agencies——not a single outside group or individual——made the determination.

The National Security Act specifically defines whistleblowing as information that reveals wrongdoing that is illegal, immoral, or grossly inconsistent with public interest.
